题型：TO WHAT EXTENT DO YOU AGREE OR DISAGREE?

例题 1 (SOURCE: COMPLETE IELTS B1 STUDENT'S BOOK UNIT 4)

As a result of electronic inventions such as the computer and television, people do less physical activity, and this is having a negative effect on their health.

To what extent do you agree or disagree?

范文（语言难度：基础）

There is no doubt that modern electronic inventions have transformed people's jobs and their leisure time, so many people spend less time taking exercise. However, it is not so certain that this has damaged their health.

As far as work is concerned, office employees have always worked sitting down, and computers have not changed that. Computers have not affected physical jobs such as farming or building either, and people still do physical work like they did in the past. In fact other machines such as washing machines and tractors, not computers, have reduced the amount of physical work people do.

On the other hand, the way people spend their spare time has changed greatly. People spend many hours watching television and playing with their computers, so they do not do so much physical exercise. This is one of the things which has made more people overweight, and this affects their health when they are older.

However, people have also put on weight because they eat more food than in the past, so we should not blame modern inventions for everything. What is more, new technologies have led to better medicine, and as a result people live longer.

In conclusion, I believe that generally people live more healthily now. In my view, it is difficult to argue that modern inventions have had a harmful influence on our health. On the other hand, we need to make sure that we still take a reasonable amount of exercise.

习作分析

H 同学: On the one hand, having a intelligent device can lead to the unfriendly condition, because you don't need to meet up with friends face to face and you will be too lazy to maintain the relationship. Additionally, connecting with friends on your communication devices is easier than hanging out with your friends. Therefore, some inhabitants who use these technological methods of communication are suffering in their narrow friend circle.

M 同学: In the past, many residents had no choice to write to their friends. Because they lived far away and they were busy working, they might stop writing to each other, and other and their social lives was affected. Nowadays, with the development of economy and technology, more and more hi-tech products enter people's lives. Although citizens are too far away from their friends, they can use email, messaging or other applications to contact whom they want to see. For example, I always spend several hours in chatting with my friends who are staying in different places by FaceTime and WeChat so I know where they are and what they are doing. This was impossible in the past and it although I have decreased a lot of time spend meeting with my friends, it does not mean that my social lives is disturbed.

because, in this way, as a consequence, this was not possible, as a result, are worse as a result

Electronic messaging and email have changed our social lives and the way we communicate with our friends. However, it is not at all certain that our social lives (1) _____. In many ways, they are better.

In the past, people communicated by letter or by phone. They used to meet and see each other only when they had time. (2) _____ people led busy lives, often they did not have any communication with some of their friends for months. (3) _____, their relationship suffered.

Nowadays, we can be in constant contact with all our friends using social websites and instant messaging without even leaving our rooms. (4) _____, our social relationships are much closer. For example, in my case I spend about an hour chatting to friends from all over the world everyday on my computer. I know how they are, what they are thinking and what they are doing. In the past (5) _____ and I might have communicated with some of these friends only once or twice a year.

I think it is also difficult to argue that modern forms of communication have reduced the amount people see each other. In my experience, the amount people go out and meet each other has increased. It has become easier to organize parties, and young people especially are able to introduce their friends to each other and (6) _____ increase their social circle.

In conclusion, I disagree entirely with the statement in the question and firmly believe that modern communications have greatly improved people's social lives.

Colour is certainly something that influences people. In their home lives, many of the choices people make, with regard to consumer goods, are based on colour. However, I would argue that in public buildings, people have other preoccupations and are less affected by their surrounding colour scheme.

The colour of an office, for instance, is far less important than a home. Offices are places where people work, and what matters there is that equipment or technology is functioning well, that meetings have been organised and targets are being met. Employees do not care about whether their office walls are pink or green.

Obviously no one would choose to paint an office black or such a bright colour that it distracts people from their work. That is just common sense. If there is a change in décor, staff might react to it initially, but it soon becomes part of the background. Ultimately, people are too involved in what they are doing to be influenced by colour.

Similarly, hospital patients are unaware of the colours around them. Instead, they are concerned about factors such as the quality of healthcare they receive and the qualifications and experience of their doctors. For while a dirty hospital or poor nursing might threaten their recovery, a pastel-coloured ward will not.

What is more, psychologists' ideas about colour and its effect on health are not reliable. While some have argued that pastels are better because they calm people down, others suggest that lively colours are best because they make people happier.

This all leads me to the conclusion that although colour has a significant role to play in our lives on a personal level, that is where its influence ends. In most public places, we are concentrating on other, more important matters and colour has little impact on us.

题型：DO THE ADVANTAGES OUTWEIGH THE DISADVANTAGES?

例题 1 (SOURCE: COMPLETE IELTS B2 STUDENT'S BOOK UNIT 6)

Buying things on the Internet, such as books, air tickets and groceries, is becoming more and more popular.

Do the advantages of shopping in this way outweigh the disadvantages?

It is becoming increasingly common for people to go online to buy what they need rather than going to a shop or travel agent to do so. Although there are some dangers and disadvantages to internet shopping, I believe that the convenience often outweighs any drawbacks. There are two main dangers and disadvantages to buying things on the Internet. The one that attracts the most publicity is the problem of internet fraud. Unless the website is secure, hackers may be able to copy your credit card details and steal your money. A further disadvantage is that you cannot examine what you are buying until after you have bought it. This means you may sometimes buy something that you do not really want. On the other hand, shopping for certain things on the Internet has several points in its favour. The main one is its convenience. People who want to compare products and prices can look at all this information on a website without having to go from shop to shop. Also, they can make their purchases at any time of day or night and from any part of the world. The other advantage is that because internet companies do not need a shop, the products which they sell are often cheaper. All in all, I think that the advantages of using the internet for buying things such as books, computers and air tickets are greater than the disadvantages. However, someone that wants to buy clothes should visit shops because they need to see and touch them before buying them, and I would not recommend purchasing them online.

T 同学: There are two main dangers and disadvantages to find a job for people who are only students. The one that influences the younger is the problem of lacking experience and knowledge. They may only find a low-pay job because the educational background of them may be unsatisfactory. A further disadvantage is that people may forget what they have learned in the past and it is hard to pick up the knowledge that they mastered in the high school or junior school.

C 同学: There are two main risks of finding a work rather than enter university directly. Firstly, young people who take a job before college may be hit by the strong competition from work. This means that they are lack of theoretical knowledge and practice experience from university so most of them will be in a weak position in such crucial competition. As a result, it is likely for them to lose self-confidence after several frustrations. Another disadvantage is that if the young people are accustomed to the working life, it must be difficult for them to change their life to the relatively regulated environment in campus. What I mean is that they are likely to refuse coming back to the university to get more knowledge that can arm themselves in the future, and it has unfavorable impact on the development of our society.

It has become more and more popular for students to work for a period of time rather than going straight to university. There are advantages to this, but I feel that it is also a risk and could lead to some problems.

One of the obvious disadvantages of getting a job is that you may find that you cannot get a university place at a later stage. This is because there may be a lot of competition for places, and the longer you wait, the harder it may be to get one. You could even find that the course you want has been changed or dropped.

Another disadvantage is that you can lose the habit of studying. For example, school students are trained to use a range of study skills, which help them achieve academic success. However, if you are not using these skills regularly, it is easy to forget them. This could make university life much harder.

On the other hand, there are several advantages to getting a job. The first is that you can become independent. For example, people who earn their own money can afford to rent their own apartment. In addition, some of the money can be saved and used to pay for university fees. Another advantage is that working gives you some time to think about what you would really like to study. This is very useful if you are unsure about your future career.

Overall, I think there are arguments for and against the idea of working between school and university. The important thing is to be aware of these issues and choose the path that suits your personal situation.

Mobile technology has become an integral part of our lives, and the existence of mobile phones, laptops and iPads has altered the way many people work. While there are distinct advantages to this, it is important to guard against overuse and possible detrimental effects on health and relationships.

One of the biggest benefits of mobile technology is that people no longer have to work in an office. In fact, many businesses now permit their staff to work from home on some days of the week. This is particularly helpful for busy parents; it can reduce stress levels and help people manage their daily lives better.

Another benefit for many people and businesses is that work can continue outside the office. Phone calls can be made almost anywhere and documents can be read or written on public transport or in cafes. This is extremely beneficial for people who have long trips to work.

Despite the advantages mentioned above, care must be taken to ensure that the convenience of 'teleworking' does not lead to more hours on the job and less time spent doing exercise or being with friends and family. No one would deny that it is wonderful to be able to work from home, but a person who spends too much time on their computer may find that their health suffers in the long run.

Similarly, anyone who enjoys the benefits of working on public transport needs to make sure that they consider other people around them. In my city, there are notices that warn travellers not to talk loudly on their phones; in others, there are mobile-free carriages on trains because companies have had so many complaints.

On the whole, most people profit from the use of mobile technology, and there are obvious advantages to its use. However, we need to keep an eye on how much we rely on this resource, otherwise the disadvantages will be greater for everyone.

Some people say that tourism has many negative effects on the countries that people travel to.

How true is this statement? What can tourists do to reduce the harmful effects of tourism on local cultures and environments?

Some countries rely on tourism, as it is their main industry. These countries receive large numbers of tourists and have to provide many facilities for them. This brings money into the economy and creates jobs, but it can also cause problems.

In my opinion, one of the worst effects of tourism is the presence of large crowds of people in streets and areas of beauty. When this happens, local people can find it difficult to do things they want to do. Also, the appearance of their home city or village can change so much that they feel they have lost their identity.

Another disadvantage of tourism is that tourists do not usually worry about environmental issues. If trees have been cut down to build hotels, this does not matter to them. If their children drop litter, they may not do anything about it. However, these problems can be very worrying for people who live in the area all the time.

Generally, I think there are positive things that tourists can do. Firstly, they can think about where they go on holiday and avoid places that are already overcrowded. Secondly, they should read something about their holiday destination before they leave. This will help them understand the people and culture better. Lastly, they should try to look after the area they stay in and observe the rules there.

Overall, I believe tourism has many benefits for everyone. However, it is important that people still think about protecting tourist locations and reducing the undesirable impacts of tourist behaviour.

Y 同学: In my opinion ,schools and parents are obligation for coping with this issue. In actual fact, most youngsters spend over half of their time in campus, so the school authorities are in charge of making students have a healthy lifestyle. First, teachers can organize a lecture about healthy life to explain why and how to have a fit life. Second, the outdoor classes can be increased. It will be a great chance for teenagers boost their physical strength. Third, school can try to give less homework that enables kids to relax. On the other hand, parents also play an important role on solving children's health matters. At weekends, the family numbers can organize a family trip to have some exercises outside. Similarly, in our country, a number of parents sign up an interest-oriented sport class for their kids. This is also a helpful way for improving people's physical health.

Nowadays, children have many more opportunities to lead a healthy life than in the past because generally they live in hygienic surroundings and have plenty to eat. However, modern lifestyles mean that many children spend long hours in front of the television or computers, do not take a great deal of exercise and eat an unbalanced diet.

I believe both parents and schools can do a lot to remedy this situation. Parents should limit the time that children spend sitting down and should encourage them to take more exercise. They could, for example, play sports with them at the weekend. Schools also should include regular exercise in their timetables, with activities such as physical education and compulsory sports.

As far as diet is concerned, both parents and schools should provide children with a range of foods which include plenty of vegetables and fruit and only small amounts of fat. If children are brought up on a healthy diet, they learn responsible eating habits and this, combined with plenty of physical activity, helps them to grow into healthy adults.

On the other hand, I think that governments and health authorities have a responsibility to teach people how to create a healthy lifestyle for children. This can be done, for example, by broadcasting programmes about healthy eating on television, or by giving courses to new parents on how to bring up their children.

In conclusion, I believe that governments can encourage and help by giving information to people. However, the responsibility for bringing up children with a good healthy lifestyle lies with the people who are in regular contact with them, in other words their parents and their teachers.

There can be no doubt that human beings have been responsible for loss of wildlife. While we tend to exploit the natural world for our own purposes, some of our ancestors understood their relationship with other species much better. I would argue that it is this sense of harmony with nature that we need to recapture.

One of the main reasons why certain species of wildlife have become threatened is loss of habitat. As the population of the world has grown, humans have claimed increasingly large areas of land for the construction of homes and cities. An inevitable result has been the removal of plants and trees and the destruction of animal territories.

Increasing urban development has, in turn, led to global warming, which is another contributing factor. Temperature and rainfall are critical to the survival of wildlife. Global warming has resulted in a shift in weather patterns, resulting in drought, flooding and heatwaves, all of which have taken their toll on the natural world.

So what can be done? I believe that the problem has to be tackled on a number of levels. As individuals, we should ensure that we treat the countryside with respect, avoid activities that harm animal life and, if possible, participate in projects or donate to charities that work to protect the world around us.

However, it seems that the real work has to be done on a national and international level. What governments need to do in their own countries is to encourage sustainable building practices, limit urban growth and reduce human activities which contribute to global warming. But they also need to sign up to treaties that enable nations to collaborate in the protection of the world's diverse species. After all, we cannot live without our flora and fauna.

Many of the threats to plant and animal life are a direct result of human activity, so it is now time to redress the situation. If we do not do this, we may be the next species to become endangered.

例题 1 (SOURCE: COMPLETE IELTS B2 STUDENT'S BOOK UNIT 8)

Some people argue that fashion items cost too much money. Others say that this is acceptable because fashion is an important part of life.

Discuss both these views and give your own opinion.

Throughout history, people have always been interested in fashion. When you read magazines these days, you see many advertisements for the latest fashions, and some of these are very expensive. So, is this a good thing?

Some people say that prices should be lower in shops, and I can understand their point of view. Before youngsters start work, they depend on their parents for money. Although many parents are not wealthy, they are often pressurised into buying things like designer jeans for their children. After they have started earning money, young adults can still find it hard to afford fashionable clothes because they are saving up for other items.

However, there are other people who say they are happy to pay for designer clothes. Teenagers look forward to doing this when they have their own income. Celebrities have plenty of money, so they might say that they do not worry about how much clothes cost. They know they need to look after their image while they are famous. Surely fashion designers would also argue that the cost is fine. According to people in the fashion business, you cannot criticise until you have seen how hard it is to be original and set new trends.

Personally, I think the question depends on how important fashion is for you. If you are not interested in fashion, you needn't spend a lot of money because these days there are many clothes shops around. On the other hand, if you like to look good, you have to buy fewer clothes and pay more money for them.

Although clothes have become quite expensive, I think there is enough choice these days for everyone. Parents just have to be strict with children about what they can afford, and people have to buy within their budget.

According to psychological survey, dressing cleanly can make them more convincing, when they need to persuade others to do something or take medicines. Therefore, it is a suitable way to let their visitors trust them. Additionally, dressing smartly also has a special meaning for common people. Workers can feel more confident through their attractive dressing and it's contribute to their works. This is because individual's emotion can easily influenced by appearance.

H 同学：On the other hand, other people think that dress still has some weakness, it is not suitable for all people, formal clothes make people uncomfortable because most dress are closed or inelastic, then they may reduce work performance because they can feel very hot. 范文（语言难度：中等）

People do not all feel the same about history. For some people, it is very interesting and they like seeing old things and talking about how different life once was. For others, it is just a boring subject. Personally, I think the past is very interesting and there is a lot we can learn from it.

Historians often talk about how people lived long ago because it shows us the society has moved forward. For example, whereas one person may have taken a week to make a pair of trousers in the 18th century, we can now make hundreds of pairs over the same period of time. They believe this is important evidence of human progress.

Many tourists really enjoy going to museums when they visit other countries. There, they see objects from centuries ago. For example, my country is well known for its beautiful arts and crafts, and we see these as cultural treasures. Other people like reading about inventors or travellers. All these types of people would say that history is a wonderful subject.

On the other hand, not everyone agrees with their views. Youngsters in particular feel that the past is too far away to think about. They are more interested in the future and in how things will change. For them, going to a museum can be very boring because they feel no connection with the exhibits, while reading about history seems meaningless.

In my view, this is a pity. Everyone should have an interest in the past because it has made us what we are now. However, sometimes we just have to accept that people like and dislike things, and one example is history.

The chart shows three areas of difficulty people have when they move to another country and how these difficulties vary according to age.

The greatest problem for people of all ages is arranging medical care. Between 32 and 37 percent of all people find this a problem.

The second biggest problem is organising finances. Although only 29 percent of people over 55 are affected by this, 35 percent of the middle age group and 34 percent of the 18-34 age group experience difficulties in this area.

In contrast, fewer people have difficulties with education. While 19 percent of the 35-54 age group have trouble finding a suitable school for their children, the percentage of people in the other two age groups is much lower at 6 percent for the young age group and 3 percent for the 55s.

The chart and table reveal some significant differences between the countries, with regard to health and medical care.

Looking at the chart, it can be seen that Japan provides by far the highest number of hospital beds, at 14 per thousand of the population. The second highest allocation is 8 per thousand in Germany, but this is little more than half the Japanese figure. On the other hand, the US, Spain, Canada and the UK provide the lowest numbers of hospital beds, at around 3 per thousand people. Dutch and Australian figures are only very slightly higher than this.

The table takes a closer look at funding and life expectancy in three of these countries. Although Japan has a much better life expectancy figure (83 years) than the other two countries, its government spends considerably less money on healthcare, contributing just $2,581 per person. In contrast, the US government allocates well over twice that amount, yet its citizens have a life expectancy of only 78 years. Meanwhile, Dutch people can expect to live to be 80, and the government spends $3,481 on each citizen.

Although the Japanese government contributes much less money to healthcare, there are far more beds available for patients, and people can expect to live longer there than in some other countries.

范文（语言难度：中等）

The line graph shows the percentage of new graduates who found jobs as teachers of English and French in Ontario each year from 2001 to 2007.

At the beginning of the period, teachers of both languages had approximately a 70% success rate in finding jobs, although French teachers were slightly less successful than English teachers. The following year, recruitment for both categories fell by approximately 15% to 55%.

However, in 2003, teachers of French began to be more successful at finding employment than their English teaching colleagues. Their recruitment rate rose to nearly 70%, where it stabilised, with minor variations, until 2007 when it rose again to just under 75%.

On the other hand, the employment of new graduates as English teachers decreased sharply to 40% in 2003. During the following two years, the number acquiring jobs rose slightly to 44% in 2005 before falling to just over 25% in 2007.

Overall, the graph shows new graduates in Ontario managed to find more jobs as French teachers than as English teachers over the same period.

范文 (语言难度: 进阶)

The graph shows the changing number of cases of whooping cough in Britain from 1940 to 1990, and how the introduction and use of a vaccine for the disease affected the pattern.

Clearly, there was a direct link between the administration of the vaccine and the number of cases of whooping cough among children during this period in history.

Overall, the number of cases fell from a high of 170,000 to almost zero. However, there were significant fluctuations in the trend. For example, just after 1940, there was a surge in the number of cases from 50,000 to approximately 170,000. Although the figure fell back in the next few years, it peaked again in the early 1950s and fluctuated considerably until the introduction of a vaccination in the late 1950s.

Following this, the number of cases dropped sharply to well below 20,000 in the mid-1970s, until a sudden fall in vaccinations, from 81 percent to 30 percent, resulted in a parallel rise in the incidence of the illness. Figures then went up again to 60,000 around 1980, but gradually fell back to their earlier level as vaccinations were resumed. By 1990, 94 percent of children were being vaccinated against whooping cough, and there were few, if any, cases.

The charts below show the result of a survey on happiness ratings for married and unmarried people in the US, and the effect of children on the overall ratings of married people.

The charts show the percentage of people in the United States who are happy, divided into age groups, marital status and whether or not they have children.

According to the charts, 44 to 45 percent of married people in ages ranging from 18 to 29, 30 to 39 and 65 plus are happy, while slightly fewer (40 percent) of those in the 50 to 64 age group are happy. In contrast, only 21 to 22 percent of unmarried people are happy in all age groups, apart from those aged 65 and over. Here, there is a significant difference, with 34 percent of people being happy.

Having children appears to have little effect on happiness levels. The percentage of happy, married people with children under 18 is 44 percent, while it is 43 percent for those without children and 41 percent for couples with children over 18.

Overall, happiness levels in the US are below 50 percent. However, married people tend to be happier than unmarried people, whether or not they have children.

Until 2009, the people work without superior rose to 5%, also the percentage of closed relationship kept a increasing trend, which was 65%.

The pie charts show what people said about their relationships with their supervisors and their co-workers in 2005 and 2009.

On the subject of their relationships with supervisors, many people said that they had a very good relationship. This figure went up from 61% in 2005 to 65% in 2009. The next highest percentage was people who said they had a good relationship – this fell from 26% in 2005 to 22% in 2009. Not many people said the relationship was only fair or that it was poor, and not many didn't have a supervisor. So, the vast majority of people had a good or very good relationship in both years.

Concerning relationships with co-workers, again most people in both years said the relationships were either very good or good, the figure for very good rising from 63% to 70%. The figure for people saying the relationships were fair fell from 7% to 3% and in 2009 nobody said the relationship was poor. So for almost everybody, relationships with co-workers were very good or good.

Overall, slightly more people said their relationships with co-workers were very good or good in both years but the difference was not great and in general both relationships were described as very good or good by most people. The reason did not change much over the two years, though in both categories the percentage of people saying relationships were very good rose a bit.

范文（语言难度：进阶）

The data provide information about species extinctions in tropical forests and the reasons why plants become extinct.

Looking at the graph first, it can be seen that approximately 4,000 in every million species had become extinct by 2000. This figure is predicted to rise significantly until 2060, when it will hit a peak at 50,000 and then fall, though less steeply, to 28,000 per million in the year 2100.

The chart takes a close look at the impact of different types of activity on plant survival. Clearly, over three-quarters of extinctions are caused by human activity, and more than half of this is related in some way to farming. Other activities, such as logging (9.7 percent) and development (10.4 percent), also pose threats. Natural events, on the other hand, have a much smaller effect on the lives of plants.

Natural disasters, such as tropical storms, account for 7 percent of extinctions, while other natural influences cause a further 11.7 percent.

To sum up, extinctions in tropical regions will get much worse before they eventually fall. Meanwhile, human beings are likely to be responsible for the greater part of these.

The diagrams below show the design for a wind turbine and its location.

The diagrams show a machine for generating electricity from wind and where it can be placed.

A typical wind turbine consists of a steel tower, three blades made of fibreglass or wood and a generator. The process starts when the blades are turned by wind, and this allows the generator to produce 1.5 megawatts of electricity. When any change in wind speed or direction is detected by a sensor on top of the generator, such information is sent to a computer which modifies the direction and angle of the turbine accordingly.

The turbine can be installed at three different locations. When situated on top of a mountain, it receives the most amount of wind. The interruption to the view thus caused can, alternatively, be avoided by placing the turbine off the coast. A third option is to install it close to residential areas, where it supplies 100 kilowatts of power for domestic use.

Overall, although the turbine is a simple machine that harnesses renewable energy, different locations bring different benefits.

The four pictures illustrate the changes that can take place in the appearance of a headland as a result of coastal erosion.

A headland is a cliff or large rock that extends into the sea. Initially, it is solid, but over time, the movement of the sea water can wear away a weak part at the base of the rock, to form a small hollow or cave. At high tide, the water may reach half-way up the headland and gradually the motion of the waves can widen the cave, turning it into an arch. Durdle Door in Dorset is an example of this type of erosion.

As the water continually beats against the arch, it can weaken the top part, which eventually collapses, leaving an isolated piece of rock called a 'stack'. Over time, the stack also wears away to form a 'stump'. Meanwhile, more caves may develop along the base of the headland, and additional arches and stacks can be created.

习作分析

C 同学: At first, the headline of cliff extends to the water which is very solid. Over time, with the scour of waves, there is a weak zone

The diagrams clearly show how the continual process of erosion, with the formation of caves, arches and stumps of rock, contributes to the eventual withdrawal of a headland.

Before planting can take place, the land must be cleared and prepared. Heavy machinery is used to turn over the soil and ensure that it is ready for young trees. Once this has been done, saplings that have been grown in a nursery are taken to the area and planted individually.

Over time, the young trees start to grow. As they reach a certain height, they are pruned by hand and the forest is thinned. Trees that have been cut down at this stage are used for firewood or to create posts for fences.

The remaining trees gradually reach maturity and are not removed until they are required for wood products. When this happens, individual trees are felled using electrical saws, and prepared for transport on site. The trunks are transported by lorry either to the pulp mill, where they are turned into paper or cardboard, or to the sawmill, where they are dried and cut into planks, to be used for floorboards and furniture. Meanwhile the cleared forest ground is prepared for the planting of new saplings.

Clearly, the agricultural process required to produce wood-based products consists of a number of well-defined stages that allow forest trees to reach a certain age before they are cut down and new forests are planted.

Looking at the two maps, it is evident that this island changed dramatically in the last twenty years.

There has been a great deal of development in the south of the island. A motorway has been building threw the centre. This divides the existing farm from a newly built hotel, skyscraper and increased residential area. The church and pond, however, still remain the same as they always were.

There are new developments at the north end of the island. Behind the hills, there is a football stadium. Furthermore, in the east of the island a large hospital has built with space for car parking. To the east of the hills are the

The maps compare the current and future layouts of the central area of a town called Islip.

Overall, a number of changes will made in terms of transport, shopping and residential areas.

The present layout of the town centre is relatively simple. There is a main road from east to west, along which lie two rows of shops. Not much development can be found to the north, but on the opposite side are two residential blocks without vehicle access, as well as a park and a school that can be reached by road.

According to the plan, the main road will be replaced by a traffic-free zone, accompanied by a new shopping centre and a bus station and a car park on the northern side. This combination might increase convenience for driving to the commercial district. A dual carriageway will be built around the whole region, while two residential areas will emerge just off this main transport route, which would be able to accommodate a larger number of inhabitants. The diagrams illustrate some changes to a small island which has been developed for tourism.

It is clear that the island has changed considerably with the introduction of tourism, and six new features can be seen in the second diagram. The main developments are that the island is accessible and visitors have somewhere to stay.

Looking at the maps in more detail, we can see that small huts have been built to accommodate visitors to the island. The other physical structures that have been added are a reception building, in the middle of the island, and a restaurant to the north of the reception. Before these developments, the island was completely bare apart from a few trees.

As well as the buildings mentioned above, the new facilities on the island include a pier, where boats can dock. There is also a short road linking the pier with the reception and restaurant, and footpaths connect the huts. Finally, there is a designated swimming area for tourists off a beach on the western tip of the island.

Some people who have been in prison become good citizens later, and it is often argued that these are the best people to talk to teenagers about the dangers of committing a crime.

To what extent do you agree or disagree?

It is true that ex-prisoners can become normal, productive members of society. I completely agree with the idea that allowing such people to speak to teenagers about their experiences is the best way to discourage them from breaking the law.

In my opinion, teenagers are more likely to accept advice from someone who can speak from experience. Reformed offenders can tell young people about how they became involved in crime, the dangers of a criminal lifestyle, and what life in prison is really like. They can also dispel any ideas that teenagers may have about criminals leading glamorous lives. While adolescents are often indifferent to the guidance given by older people, I imagine that most of them would be extremely keen to hear the stories of an ex-offender. The vivid and perhaps shocking nature of these stories is likely to have a powerful impact.

The alternatives to using reformed criminals to educate teenagers about crime would be much less effective. One option would be for police officers to visit schools and talk to young people. This could be useful in terms of informing teens about what happens to lawbreakers when they are caught, but young people are often reluctant to take advice from figures of authority. A second option would be for school teachers to speak to their students about crime, but I doubt that students would see teachers as credible sources of information about this topic. Finally, educational films might be informative, but there would be no opportunity for young people to interact and ask questions.

In conclusion, I fully support the view that people who have turned their lives around after serving a prison sentence could help to deter teenagers from committing crimes.

Many criminals re-offend after they have been punished.

Why do some people continue to commit crimes after they have been punished? What measures can be taken to tackle this problem?

rehabilitation, observation, reoffend, served, released, deter, retrain, supervision, offenders, sentence

A large number of criminals who serve their first prison _____, leave prison only to reoffend. This is mainly because of the lack of rehabilitation and difficulty finding regular employment once released. There are a number of solutions which should be implemented to deal with criminals who _____.

Firstly, the reason for most first-time offenders committing crimes again, once they have been released from prison, is due to the lack of _____ whilst in prison. In other words, offenders are not given a chance to _____ and learn new skills for their future or develop a deeper understanding of correct moral behaviour and instead mix with other criminals, which only strengthens their criminal intentions. Secondly, repeat offending is also owing to the difficulty in finding employment after being _____. As a result, many of them struggle financially which leads them back to crime, regardless of the consequences.

There are two effective solutions to the problem of repeat _____. One way to tackle this is to ensure that all criminals entering prison are given the chance to retrain with useful skills which will hopefully ensure them a job after they have _____ their sentence. By doing this, it will help them reintegrate back into society and give them some means of supporting themselves financially. Another method of dealing with criminals who reoffend is to have more _____ and checks in place when they are back in society. This solution would hopefully prevent them from taking any chances and _____ them from reoffending because they are being so closely watched.

In conclusion, having training in prison and also close _____ when first time offenders are released are effective in dealing with the issue. If governments implemented these solutions, crime figures would soon drop.

It is true that video lavsulceern (surveillance) has become commonplace in many cities in recent years. While I understand that critics may see this as an invasion of acrypiv, I believe that the benefits do outweigh the drawbacks.

There are two main reasons why people might disapprove of the use of video cameras in public places. The first objection is that these cameras nidvea our privacy, in the sense that we are constantly being watched by the saehrttiuo or by private security firms. Many people find this irtunsiev and feel that the recording of their movements is a form of state control that curtails their individual freedom. The second argument against the proliferation of CCTV cameras is that they are being used as an alternative to police officers tpigrlona the streets. If this is indeed happening, then it is unlikely that members of the public will feel safer.

In spite of the drawbacks mentioned above, I believe that the use of video cameras to minroot public areas is a positive measure. The key objective of video surveillance is to deter criminals and to evterpn crime. For example, ptety criminals like shoplifters and pickpockets are less likely to operate in parts of cities where they know that they are being watched. At the same time, when crimes are committed, the police can use video evidence to catch and epotcersu offenders. Therefore, in my view, video cameras offer valuable support to police officers, and they make cities safer for inhabitants, workers and visitors alike.

In conclusion, it seems to me that we gain more than we lose from the enhanced security that CCTV cameras bring to our cities.

范文 (选自 IELTS-SIMON.COM; 语言难度：进阶)

In my opinion, men and women should have the same educational opportunities. However, I do not agree with the idea of accepting equal proportions of each gender in every university subject.

Having the same number of men and women on all degree courses is simply unrealistic. Student numbers on any course depend on the applications that the institution receives. If a university decided to fill courses with equal numbers of males and females, it would need enough applicants of each gender. In reality, many courses are more popular with one gender than the other, and it would not be practical to aim for equal proportions. For example, nursing courses tend to attract more female applicants, and it would be difficult to fill these courses if fifty per cent of the places needed to go to males.

Apart from the practical concerns expressed above, I also believe that it would be unfair to base admission to university courses on gender. Universities should continue to select the best candidates for each course according to their qualifications. In this way, both men and women have the same opportunities, and applicants know that they will be successful if they work hard to achieve good grades at school. If a female student is the best candidate for a place on a course, it is surely wrong to reject her in favour of a male student with lower grades or fewer qualifications.

In conclusion, the selection of university students should be based on merit, and it would be both impractical and unfair to change to a selection procedure based on gender.

It is true that men are increasingly likely to take on the role of _____, while more women than ever are the _____ in their families. There could be several reasons for this, and I consider it to be a very positive trend.

In recent years, parents have had to adapt to various changes in our societies. Equal rights movements have made great progress, and it has become normal for women to gain qualifications and _____ a career. It has also become _____ acceptable for men to stay at home and look after their children. At the same time, the rising cost of living has meant that both marriage _____ usually need to work and save money before starting a family. Therefore, when couples have children, they may decide who works and who stays at home depending on the personal _____ of each partner, or based on which partner earns the most money.

In my view, the changes described above should be seen as _____. We should be happy to live in a society in which men and women have equal opportunities, and in which women are not put under pressure to _____ their careers. Equally, it seems only fair that men should be free to leave their jobs in order to _____ childcare responsibilities if this is what they wish to do. Couples should be left to make their own decisions about which parental role each partner takes, according to their particular _____ and needs.

In conclusion, the changing _____ of men and women in the family are a result of wider changes in society, and I believe that these developments are desirable.

例题 1: C11T1 TASK 1

The charts below show the percentage of water used for different purposes in six areas of the world.

范文（作者：TERRANCE；语言难度：中等）

The pie charts give a breakdown of different purposes for water usage in six regions.

In four out of the six areas, i.e., Africa, Central Asia, South America, and South East Asia, at least two-fold more water is consumed for agricultural purposes than other purposes combined. In these regions, more than 70% is allocated to the agricultural sector, whereas industrial use only took up 10% or less, with the exception of South East Asia (12%).

By contrast, in both North America and Europe, industry accounts for the highest percentage. More specifically, about half of water consumption is attributed to this sector, compared with roughly one-third associated with agriculture.

The range in water used for domestic purposes is the smallest, with the percentages varying between 19% and 7%.

Overall, while water is mainly consumed for industry in more developed areas, this type of resource mostly serves for agricultural development in less developed areas.

The graph below shows the percentage change in the number of international students graduating from universities in different Canadian provinces between 2001 and 2006.

The chart compares the changes that took place between 2001 and 2006 in relation to the percentage of overseas students who graduated from universities in Canada.

In 2001, the proportion of students from other countries who graduated in Canada ranged from three percent in Ontario to seven percent in New Brunswick. Nova Scotia had the second highest percentage at 6.5. Five years later, the figures for most provinces had risen by two to three percent, with the exception of Alberta. There, figures fell by one percent to just over four percent.

A closer look at the chart reveals that significant growth occurred in New Brunswick, where the figures rose from seven to just under 12 percent. However, the biggest increase took place in British Columbia, where the percentage of graduates more than doubled, reaching almost 11 percent in 2006.

Over this five-year period, some parts of Canada experienced a considerable increase in their proportion of overseas graduates, although New Brunswick remained the province with the highest percentage overall.

2. However, people have also put on weight because they eat more food than in the past, so we should not blame modern inventions for everything.
4. I disagree entirely with the statement in the question and firmly believe that modern communications have greatly improved people's social lives.

例题 2

审题练习：(5) 没有明确要求。(6) 不可以，题目内容有 “for people who do this” 的限制。

习作分析：

T 同学：本段的主要问题在第一个原因。第一，分论点的呈现不准确；lacking experience and knowledge 不是先工作带来的缺点，可以修改为 “先工作对提升经验和知识帮助不大”。第二，没有进行重要性的标记。建议修改如下：The biggest one, often ignored by many people, is that such early work experience may not boost school leavers' academic performance. Because they are limited by their prior experience and knowledge, these young people can only do simple jobs that do not necessarily prepare them for more sophisticated problem-solving tasks in college. 或者从赚钱交学费的角度来分

析：The biggest one, often ignored by many people, is that such early work experience may not secure a substantial sum of money for college. Because most school leavers can only do simple, low-pay jobs, it can be difficult for them to accumulate a sufficient amount of fund to cover college tuition, accommodation and daily expenses.

C 同学：第一条理由写得不好。首先，细节句开始的 this means 是指 strong competition 带来的结果，而主句内容是 lack of theoretical knowledge and practice experience from university，因果关系不成立。第二，仅仅用 firstly 不能体现该理由的重要性。此部分可以精简和修改为：The biggest concern is that the harsh requirement and lack of mentorship in the work environment may demotivate young people from making progress. Without proper guidance and support, these new employees can struggle to complete demanding tasks and as a result gradually lose confidence and determination, qualities necessary to survive academic challenges in college.

范文分析：(1) There are advantages to this, but I feel that it is also a risk and could lead to some problems. (2) 并没有。立场的设定依靠总起段、总结段和主体段的具体表达；某方向的细节内容写得比较多，并不意味着立场偏向于认同该方向。(3) 缺点部分两个自然段比较简短，加起来的总量与优点段相比并没有压倒性优势，尚算平衡。(4) One of the obvious disadvantages of ... is that you

例题 2

审题练习: (5) 不是, 也可以按照问题的不同方面分段, 在同一个方面介绍问题的具体表现, 以及学校家庭可以如何解决问题。 (6) 可以不写。 (7) 是。

习作分析:

Y 同学: 段落结构大致合理, 但具体内容有重复。其中, In actual fact, most youngsters spend over half of their time in campus, so the school authorities are in charge of making students have a healthy lifestyle. 比较啰嗦, 没有直奔“学校可以解决问题”的主题, 需要删减。细节部分内容大致合理, 但是单句较多, 可以根据句间的逻辑关系进行合并。建议修改如下: Both schools and parents should seek solutions to this problem. Since students spend half of their time on campus, school authorities can host lectures and workshops to raise awareness of nutritious, low-fat diets and revise cafeteria menus accordingly. They can also increase the amount and variety of physical exercise students are required to do, so as to keep them in good shape. Similarly, parents should ensure their children's healthy lifestyle over the weekend. Apart from supplying a healthy food selection, they can promote physical fitness by organising family trips to outdoor locations or by encouraging their children to attend sport training camps they are interested in.

例题 2

审题练习：(5) 分情况讨论。(6) 可以采取四段论，具体段落结构可参考课件内容。

习作分析：

F 同学：第一，本段缺乏一个概括全段内容的主旨句，句型可以参考例题 1 的范文。第二，目前的细节部分单句也比较多，建议合并升级为复杂句。另外，workers 一词的含义不清晰，疑似与前面的 professionals 重复，可以具体化。建议修改如下：Some people say that smart clothing is important in the work place. Medical and legal consultants tend to believe the psychological power of wearing formal outfits for convincing their clients to follow their advice. This is because the formal look delivers a sense of professionalism and authority, resulting in greater trust and confidence in their service. Support staff members may also agree. While clean and smart appearance leaves positive impressions, this can urge them to act in a professional manner to match their image, which should result in quality of work.

H 同学：本段的主要缺陷是没有将人群具体化，给出的细节内容比较笼统。可以根据服装舒适度和工作质量的关联，找到具体的行业或职位内容。建议修改如下：However, there are other people who do not necessarily consider smart clothing to be beneficial for their own work. Technicians and cleaners may not find formal garment necessary and useful. When they are busy investigating hardware failures or tidying up messy conference rooms, they tend to prioritise comfort and efficiency over looks. Office workers who do not need to perform physical duties may also agree. These employees mostly do backend jobs and do not meet clients in person, so they do not have to worry about presenting themselves in the most formal, smart manner and can therefore focus on their jobs instead.

1. Although clothes have become quite expensive, I think there is enough choice these days for everyone. Parents just have to be strict with children about what they can afford, and people have to buy within their budget.
2. I would conclude that being smart is important. Some employees may say they feel unhappy about this, but they can easily change and wear something more informal when they have left work. The office is a different environment.
3. In my view, this is a pity. Everyone should have an interest in the past because it has made us what we are now. however, sometimes we just have to accept that people like and dislike things, and one example is history.

例题 2

审题练习：(1) finance 和 healthcare 总量比较接近。(2) finding schools 的总量明显更少。(3) 总量比较接近。(4) 中年人问题总量稍微多一些。(5) finance 和 healthcare 数量比较接近。(6) 中年人遇到 finding schools 问题的数量突出。

习作分析：

C 同学：本段的内容组合不够理想，需要考虑将相近的数字（中年、老年）合并介绍。另外，可以侧重检查句子成分是否完整和正确，以及表达的搭配是否恰当。建议修改如下：
First of all, making medical arrangements is considered the most challenging by new immigrants. Over 35 percent of middle-aged and older people find this a major problem, while slightly fewer younger people (32%) have the same issue.

M 同学：本段的内容分层较好，首先单独介绍最大值，再合并较少的两个数量。表达方面错误较多，例如衔接词 in contrast 后搭配 to the problem with finding schools for their children，令读者误以为本段介绍其他内容。建议修改如下：In contrast, making educational arrangements for children is a much smaller issue. Eighteen percent of 35-to-54-year-olds have trouble dealing with this, while it is challenging for even fewer in the other two age groups (6% and 2%, respectively).

范文分析：(1) 三个数值比较相近，合并介绍满足题型对 comparison 重点呈现的要求。

(2) 34%和 35%比较接近，写在一起体现相似性；29%相比之下差距大更大，分开写体现差异。(3) 第一句属于段内的总起句。用 fewer 这个比较级体现段间承接功能，与前面段落介绍数量比较。(4) 第一句归纳组间相似性，第二句介绍主要差异；句间承接词为 however，表示转折关系。

D 同学：本段的主要问题是缺少清晰的主旨句；而且细节信息多而零碎，句间衔接较为机械。建议修改如下：The employment rate of French teachers experienced a minor increase over the period surveyed. In 2002, 70% of them were able to secure a regular teaching position, but this subsequently became more difficult, as numbers dropped to 55% within two years. Despite this temporary dip, the subsequent figures remained around 70% until a slight rise to 75% in 2007.

C 同学：本段合并描述两组初期数据，内容大致合理。注意句间衔接用词就行。建议修改如下：The figures of the two groups were largely comparable in the initial period. Both started at around 70 percent, although English-language teachers found it slightly easier to find a job. In the following year, similarly, there was a significant fall of 15 percent in both categories.

范文分析：(1) both、slightly less successful than、more successful、managed to find more jobs than。(2) rose、rose slightly。(3) fell、decreased sharply、falling。(4) stabilised, with minor variations。(5) had approximately a 70% success rate、nearly 70%、just under 75%、just over 25%。
